What’s new in the Library for Fall 2021?

It has been a challenging year and we look forward to most of you returning to campus where you can take advantage of all the resources the Library has to offer. By August 25, most of UC Berkeley’s libraries will have reopened. This year’s welcome back newsletter for those working in the Romance languages focuses on both digital and print resources. For the most up-to-date information on the UC Berkeley Library’s services, please continue to check the Library services and resources during COVID-19.

UC Library Search

The new catalog or discovery platform, which launched on Tuesday, July 27, makes it easier for you to find and borrow resources from libraries not just at Berkeley, but across the University of California system. Using UC Library Search, you can explore the UC Berkeley Library collections and, at the same time, the collections of libraries across the state of California and the world. You’ll be able to access materials from all 10 UC libraries, UC’s two off-campus storage complexes (the Northern Regional Library Facility and the Southern Regional Library Facility), and collections worldwide.

Replacing OskiCat, Start Your Search, and Melvyl, UC Library Search connects the libraries on every UC campus through a unified discovery and borrowing system. With the following enhancements, you can:

- Search your home campus library collection as well as the collections of all 10 UC libraries in the same system.
- Locate the full text of millions of print and online books, journal articles, and other content.
- Borrow and renew materials from any library in the UC system without retyping your library card number.
- As a single, unified system, UC Library Search offers powerful tools to help the UC Libraries make data-informed decisions around collections development and new services for library users.

For more information, check out the User Guide and article UC Library Search is here: Here’s What You Need to Know.
bCourses

For those who use bCourses for their instruction, the Library maintains four handy guides:

- Add Course Readings to bCourses
- Guide to Open, Free, & Affordable Course Materials
- Add Library Guides to bCourses
- Course Instructor Guide to Copyright & bCourses

Specialized Reference & Instruction

While I will be returning to my office in Doe Library this semester, I am also available for reference or research assistance by email, or Zoom and Chat by appointment. I can provide library instruction sessions in-person or via Zoom for any relevant courses. Reading & Composition and lower-division courses are handled through Instruction Services.

Keeping Informed of New Books and More

New acquisitions lists are not yet being generated in UC Library Search but the Romance Collections Instagram feed selectively highlights new or little known resources, services and events related to the UC Berkeley Library's romance language collections as does the Romance Language Collections blog which is updated less frequently. Both can be subscribed to or followed for automatic updates.

New Books in Print

During the campus closure, the Library faced unprecedented challenges in receiving and processing print and other analog materials. While we continued and still continue to acquire print materials and also devised new methods of cataloging digitized portions of the books for staff working at home, there is still a sizeable backlog of unprocessed material that shows as “not available” or does not yet appear in UC Library Search. Moving forward, shelf-ready services for approval plan selections and firm orders will commence this fall with our primary vendors for Western Europe—Amalivre, Casalini Libri, and Harrassowitz—in order to get new books on the shelves more quickly. Should you have any questions about new or forthcoming publications, please do not hesitate to contact me.

New eBooks

To accommodate remote teaching and research, we purchased perpetual access to several thousands of ebooks last year in the areas of Romance languages and European studies alone. Most of the records do not yet appear in UC Library Search but the books can be accessed by searching or browsing the vendor platforms listed below:

Spotlight on Library Databases

More than 1400 licensed and freely available databases are listed in A-Z Databases for easy discovery and access. Here are a few relevant, but not necessarily new, to the Romance languages and southern Europe:

Bibliografía de la Literatura Española Desde 1980
Includes over 80,000 records for books, periodical articles, critical editions of literary works, book reviews, bibliographies, congresses, and other miscellaneous material. Subjects include literary theory, literary genres, popular literature, Hispanism, bibliographies and authors. [1980-present]

BiGLI Online
Online version of Bibliografia Generale della Lingua e della Letteratura Italiana - the fundamental print bibliography and discovery tool for Italian language and literature. Includes texts, critical and historical surveys, philological and linguistic notes, essays, monographs, bibliographic reviews, etc. [1981-present].

Early European Books Online (EEB)
Full-color, high-resolution facsimile scans of rare texts in European languages from the early modern period (1450s-1701), with strong representation in Danish, Dutch, French, Italian, and Latin texts. Contents are drawn from rare book collections from the Danish Royal Library, the National Central Library in Florence, the National Library of France, the National Library of the Netherlands, the Wellcome Library in London, and others.

Electronic Enlightenment
Searchable and browseable database offering extensive access to the web of correspondence between the greatest thinkers and writers of the long eighteenth century and their families and friends, bankers and booksellers, patrons and publishers. Coverage includes letters and documents, document sources such as manuscripts and early printed editions, scholarly annotations, and links to biographies, dictionaries, encyclopedias, newspapers, and other online resources.
Grand corpus des dictionnaires
Brings together in one single searchable database the 24 most important dictionaries on the French language from the 9th to the 20th century. (Great Corpus of French Dictionaries) Most of the works are presented in a digitized format identical to the original as well as a textual facsimile, providing advanced searches and other sophisticated functionality. Includes Godefroy's Dictionnaire de l'ancienne langue française, Furetière's Dictionnaire de l'ancienne langue française, and more. [9th-20th c.]

Le Grand Robert électronique
Based on the 12th edition of Le Grand Robert de la langue française (2001), it is the most complete French dictionary. Contains more than 100,000 entries, 325,000 quotations, and millions of synonyms and cross-references to related sources such as Petit Robert des noms propres (2004) and the bibliographie generale du Grand Robert. Advanced exploratory features for usage, derivation, variation, and etymologies of individual words.

Le Monde diplomatique (LMD)
Institutional subscription with fully searchable archive of all articles published in the independent international monthly newspaper now provides access to the current issues with no moving wall. Based in Paris under the umbrella of Le Monde the original French edition goes back to the first issue in 1954 and to 1996 for the English edition.
